

Christ Church Court London EC4

Christ Church Court is a major new headquarters building which was pre-let to a leading banking organisation. It is a key component of the Paternoster Square development to the north of St Paul's Cathedral and was designed and developed in conjunction with the master plan for the area. The architecture creates a contemporary building through the careful composition of form and materials. The design provides flexible floor plates which include two financial dealing floors with good all round daylighting.
